KISHKEE LAUNCHES SERVICE TO HELP SYNAGOGUE ADMINISTRATORS DETERMINE IF QUORUM WILL BE AVAILABLE FOR PRAYER SERVICES IN REALTIME USING SMARTPHONES

Kishkee, the mobile services and solutions group of Admorphous Inc., released MakeAMinyan.com, a service that helps synagogues reach the ten male quorum required to perform certain Jewish religious services (called a "minyan" in Hebrew).

Synagogue administrators often rely on making calls to members to ensure that the minyan threshold will be achieved when scheduled. MakeAMinyan.com allows an administrator to call, text and email all synagogue members instantly by activating a "Blast" on any web-capable smartphone. Subscribers can respond by phone, text or email to let the system know whether they will be able to attend and if they will bring guests. Administrators can then see members respond to the blast in real time.

"It was a system that we developed out of necessity for my own synagogue. The interface is both sleek and simple. Members can opt-in to any of the communication mediums; I personally receive both text messages and emails for my minyan," said Josh Nankin, the lead developer of the project.

"We have seen outstanding user growth for MakeAMinyan and we hope that will continue. We'll be coming out with some awesome upgrade options soon, so keep checking our site for new information."

MakeAMinyan currently exists as a free services for synagogues. If you would like to set up the service for your synagogue or for more information please visit MakeAMinyan.com or email: makeaminyan1@gmail.com.
